Joan Holub is the author of other Who Was? titles, including Who Was Marco Polo? and Who Was Babe Ruth?

I teach this in my 4th grade classroom so it was a great book to read to them whole group.

Great book! My sons 4th grade class is studying the gold rush and he read this quickly and easily during his spring break. Lots of interesting stories and fact that he would stop and tell us along the way. he had a lot of great things to share with his classmates during their discussions about the goldrush.

A popular book in my class library.

this book was very interesting I would of never read this book if my school didn't assign it .I have only read a few parts of some of these books . they sure can teach you a lot of interesting stuff that kids my age probably would never know or care about. I would rate this book a four and a half

My reluctant reader enjoyed reading this book to me! I am always happy to find a good book that he enjoys reading!
