From the dawn of the studio system to the decade it all came crashing down, Hedda Hopper was one of the Queens of Hollywood. Although she made her name as a star of the silent screen, she found her calling as a gossip columnist, where she had the ear of the most powerful force in show business: the public. With a readership of 20,000,000 people, Hopper turned nobodies into stars, and brought stars to their knees. And in this sensational memoir, she tells all. In her career, Hopper crossed some of Hollywood's biggest bold-faced names, from Joan Crawford and Bette Davis to Charlie Chaplin and Katherine Hepburn, and her feud with rival gossip columnist Louella Parsons became the stuff of legend. In The Whole Truth and Nothing But, we get Hedda's side of the story—and what a story it is. Hedda Hopper is portrayed by Judy Davis in the Ryan Murphy TV series Feud.

Customer Reviews

This book definitely gives a lot of history of early Hollywood, the big studios, and why they were so successful.....hint: they did not treat the stars very well.

the language was a little dated but ingress it was true to it’s day funny how today we name and shame with abandon whereas thus book shows the restraint of the day

Enjoyed reading about the celebs and stars during that era!

Interesting. read most of this before.

didn’t care for the book

Surprisingly candid and lacking the animosity I expected.

The book gets a little tedious, but overall an interesting read.

Hedda Hopper certainly lived an interesting life. While the memoir was surprisingly poorly written, I did enjoy the intimate stories.
